THE HK UNIVERSITY OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY
TRIUMPHS IN THE 17TH HSBC/HKU ASIA PACIFIC
BUSINESS CASE COMPETITION

Encouraging a Sustainability Mindset among Future Business Leaders

The team representing The Hong Kong University of Science and Technology has been crowned champion of the HSBC/HKU Asia Pacific Business Case Competition 2024, the world's largest business case competition for undergraduate students. The final round of this year's competition, which took place from 26 to 29 May, was held in-person for the first time since 2019. Students from 24 prestigious universities in 19 different locations globally gathered in Hong Kong, showcasing their ideas and exploring the city's vibrant culture and innovative spirit.

The finalists were tasked to help a social enterprise, which sells surplus and short-dated goods at discounted prices, with their challenges in retaining talent.

The contestants were inspired by the case company's story and entrepreneurial spirit. The winning team impressed the judges with their proposal to implement role swaps and form innovation teams. This approach promotes skill sharing and stimulates creativity within the workforce, helping employees better understand the company's mission and boost overall engagement with their work.

Speaking at the awards presentation ceremony, Dr Peter WONG, Chairman, The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation Limited, and The Hongkong Bank Foundation, said, "As we get together in Hong Kong, we'd like students to draw inspiration from a city which is always experimenting, exploring, and defining its new identity. We all need to find relevance in a changing world. I strongly believe that when the participants graduate, they will bring fresh perspectives towards addressing the biggest challenges including the priority of sustainability, the impact of AI, and the importance of diversity and inclusion. HSBC is proud to offer continuous support to the HSBC/HKU Asia Pacific Business Case Competition since 2008, benefitting over 90,000 students."

Over the years, more than 1,500 HSBC executives have volunteered as judges, exemplifying HSBC's commitment in nurturing tomorrow's business leaders and contributing to the global economy.

Professor Hongbin CAI, Dean of HKU Business School, said, “HKU Business School and HSBC have joined forces to help nurture the next generation of leaders for Hong Kong and beyond in the last 17 years. Now the HSBC/HKU Business Case Competition has evolved into the world's largest business case competition for undergraduates and serves as a true measure of students' multifaceted skills, challenging them to apply what they have learned in the classroom to real-life situations. It was impressive to see the students demonstrate their entrepreneurial spirit and critical thinking by coming up with innovative solutions to tackle complex business problems, especially in emerging areas like ESG. I believe this experience will be invaluable in shaping them into leaders who can create a sustainable future for our communities.”

The Competition, organised by the Asia Case Research Centre, HKU Business School, aims to nurture future business leaders by sharpening their critical thinking and broadening their global perspectives. It also bridges the gap between academic theories and real-world business practices, while actively promoting a culture of diversity and inclusion.
